New Staff Members

With the departure of KRAB's most recent station manager, Monti Hind, the Board of Trustees has appointed two of its own members to help fill staff needs in programming and general management. Libby Sinclair and Margaret Hollenbach have both had a long-time interest in KRAB, first as listeners, later as staff or volunteers, and finally as board members. In addition, the Board has appointed Karl Kotas, also a long-time listener and program producer, as administrative assistant to oversee production of the monthly program guide and daily office management, and to catalogue and maintain the record library.

The station is also fortunate to have the services of Ricardo Frazer, who comes to us from Evergreen State College. Ricardo will oversee operations at the station and work with the volunteer Broadcast Quality Committee to train new engineers and keep tabs on a wide range of Operations responsibilities.

So you might know a little of who we are:

Ricardo Frazer

My interest in radio began in 1975 in New York City when I realized I couldn't sing. A friend remarked, "You can't sing, but you can talk a song through real well." Since then I have pursued a B.A. in Communications/Theatre Production. I have completed Radio Production/Management courses at New York Institute of Technology, University of Nebraska at Omaha, and the Evergreen State College. I have worked as a newscaster, production assistant and jazz producer for KVNO, Nebraska, KAOS, Olympia, and several campus stations. I'm currently completing a news internship at KIRO radio in Seattle and beginning an internship with KRAB. My interest lies in the non-commercial media because of the creativity, freedom and diversity of the individuals involved. I believe that KRAB is such a medium, and am honored at being a part of the creative force.

Margaret Hollenbach

My involvement with KRAB is complex and antique — going all the way back to 1964. Hearing KRAB is part of what I have always loved about Seattle; having access to the music archives when I became a volunteer changed my life and began my musical education. My six- or seven-month stint as Program Director in 1969 during one of my many graduate school breaks was the most exciting job I ever had. It was cut short in a time of crisis, precipitated by complaints to the FCC about obscenities aired. The Board stepped in and ran the station for a while — and I lost my job. Now I find myself at the station again, as a Board member stepping into a staff role in a time of crisis precipitated by management and financial problems.

The great challenge for KRAB in 1982 is to preserve its commitment to being a multi-ethnic, international and pluralistic forum of the air while balancing the interests of the station with the interests of the diverse groups which support and use it. I hope that my background in cultural anthropology, teaching, and communications media will help me make a responsible contribution.

Karl Kotas

was too shy to write a blurb for us this time; next issue he will tell all.

Libby Sinclair

I began listening to KRAB in 1970 when I first moved to Seattle. I have over the years been: a legal worker and Board member of the American Civil Liberties Union; for three years a researcher and advocate for women's prisoners in Seattle's County jail, developing pre-sentence reports recommending alternatives to incarceration; for the past 2½ years I coordinated a Federal public education program the purpose of which was to inform women of the risks of alcohol use during pregnancy. I have been a member of KRAB's Board for four years and have worked on numerous Board committees. As a KRAB volunteer I've produced programming for children, a 26-program series on childbirth and family issues and a 90-minute program, "Labor History in Story and Song." I am especially interested in seeing that KRAB cover more local public affairs and develop quality programming for younger listeners. I am enjoying my time here with other staff and volunteers.

On the strength of a commitment by KRAB volunteers to actively assist with numerous daily station tasks, the Board of Directors has voted to postpone any immediate cutbacks in on-air hours. Both staff and Board members express our thanks to all of those who have put body and soul into helping things run smoothly.

Please! Notify us of any address change! Our guide is mailed third class and is not forwarded by the Post Office.

with Stu Witmer

10:00 MORNING READING
Myths, Dreams and Mysteries, the Encounter between Contemporary Faith and Archaic Realities, by Mircea Eliade; your reader is Kay Hutchins.
We begin with "The Myth of the Noble Savage or the Prestige of the Beginning" and "The Good Savage, the Yogi, and the Psychoanalyst."

10:30 KRABJAZZ
"You know, America is being sold out by the government, by our own people, steel mill workers, auto workers - we're being ripped off in the name of doing something good for America and supporting this country. But musicians aren't supported by large record companies. We get tokenism, but we're not supported. Columbia signs up a jazz artist and knows right up front that they're only going to keep him for a year or two. It's a tax write-off and that's it."
(Jack De Johnette - drummer)

12:00 PROMISCUOUS DREAMER

From the Ivory Tower. Paul Stanbery plays music by two composers who chose obscurity: the only authorized recording of piano music by K.S. Sorabji--both charming and technically demanding and four of the seven pieces Jean Barraque (Baw-raw-kay) lived to complete, music virtually unknown because of its unrelievedly intense concentration. Only you can decide if this music deserves to be forgotten.

4:00 MORNING STARS

Alfred Hitchcock cringed in terror when he saw the orchestra Bernard Herrmann (composer of Psycho) had assembled for Hitch's Torn Curtain score: 12 flutes, 16 horns, 9 trombones, 2 tubas, double tympani sets, 8 celli, 8 basses. Where would the love theme come from? It ended up coming from John Addison, famous for his Tom Jones score, who took over from Herrmann. Compare Herrmann's rejected score with Addison's soundtrack and other Addison music. Find out what scared even Hitchcock.
